The Surprise Date

What's interesting is that, as you'll see below, almost everybody had thought it would be Tuesday, September 10. Actually, if you read on, you'll see that I have been favoring September 9 for some time, but I absolutely get why it had popular acclamation as the right day.

For a start, Apple has never unveiled an iPhone on a Monday—even the very first iPhone, announced on January 9, 2007, debuted on a Tuesday.

Assuming the requisite conditions to the Split-Off are satisfied or waived, as applicable, at 4:05 p.m., New York City time, on September 9, 2024, Liberty Media will redeem each outstanding share of Liberty SiriusXM common stock in exchange for a fraction of a share of common stock of New Sirius equal to the exchange ratio (as further described in New Sirius' final prospectus, which was filed with the SEC on July 23, 2024), with cash paid in lieu of any fractional shares. Liberty Media intends to publicly announce the final exchange ratio on or about September 5, 2024 prior to the completion of the Split-Off once the exchange ratio and the underlying calculations are determined by the parties.

In connection with the Split-Off, Liberty Media expects that the last day of trading of Liberty SiriusXM common stock will be September 9, 2024. Liberty Media has notified Nasdaq of its intention to voluntarily delist from the Nasdaq Global Select Market and its intention to request that Nasdaq file appropriate forms with the Securities and Exchange Commission on or about September 9, 2024. As a result, Liberty Media expects Liberty SiriusXM common stock will cease to trade following market close on September 9, 2024.

Additionally, following the Split-Off, a wholly owned subsidiary of New Sirius will merge with Sirius XM, and Sirius XM stockholders (other than New Sirius and its subsidiaries) will receive one-tenth (0.1) of a share of New Sirius common stock (the "Merger"), at 6:00 p.m., New York City time, on September 9, 2024, with cash paid in lieu of any fractional shares.

Following the Merger, Liberty Media expects that the shares of New Sirius common stock will be listed on the Nasdaq Stock Market under the ticker symbol "SIRI". Liberty Media expects that New Sirius common stock will begin trading on the Nasdaq Stock Market on September 10, 2024.

NATIONAL BLUEBERRY POPSICLE DAY | SEPTEMBER 2

National Blueberry Popsicle Day on September 2nd also kicks off National Blueberry Popsicle Month. Scheduled in the midst of the dog days of summer, it's a delicious way to cool off. Purchase a box of blueberry-flavored Popsicles or make your own. Either way, the treat will be a tasty one! With the end of summer at hand, now is the time to celebrate this National Day.

#BlueberryPopsicleDay

In San Francisco, California, in 1905, 11-yr-old Frank Epperson was outside on his porch, mixing water with a white powdered flavoring to make soda. Upon going inside, he left it there on the porch with the stirring stick still in it. That night the temperature reached a record low and the following morning, Frank discovered the drink had frozen to the stick.

NATIONAL V-J DAY | SEPTEMBER 2

On September 2nd, National V-J Day (Victory over Japan Day) recognizes Allied Forces' victory over Japan during World War II. Officials announced the surrender of Japan to the Allies on August 15, 1945. The official signing of surrender took place on September 2, 1945, officially ending World War II.

NATIONAL BEER LOVER'S DAY - September 7

GRATEFUL PATIENT DAY HISTORY

As an NFL player, Rolf Benirschke faced a battle on the field every Sunday. But more importantly, he fought his own personal battle with ulcerative colitis, ostomy surgery, and Hepatitis C—from his numerous blood transfusions. It nearly cost him his life. He emerged as a grateful patient, dedicating his life to patient advocacy. Rolf became passionate about encouraging research and innovation related to future therapies.

September 7, 1980, was Rolf's improbable and nearly impossible comeback to the NFL after his illness. His two field goals and four extra points contributed to the Chargers 34-13 win over the Seattle Seahawks.

Orion Releasing, LLC (doing business as Orion) is an American film production and distribution company owned by the Amazon MGM Studios subsidiary of Amazon. In its original operating period (then-known as Orion Pictures Corporation), the company produced and released films from 1978 until 1999 and was also involved in television production and syndication throughout the 1980s until the early 1990s. It was formed in 1978 as a joint venture between Warner Bros. and three former senior executives at United Artists. From its founding until its buyout by MGM in the late 1990s, Orion was considered one of the largest mini-major studios.^[3]

Lou Perini sold the Braves to a Chicago-based group led by William Bartholomay after the 1962 season. The ink had barely dried on the deal when Bartholomay started shopping the Braves to a larger television market. At the same time, the fast-growing city of Atlanta, led by Mayor Ivan Allen, Jr., constructed a new $18 million, 52,007–60,606 seat multi-purpose stadium in less than one year, Atlanta Stadium (later on known as Atlanta–Fulton County Stadium from 1976 until 1996 with its demolition in 1997), which was officially opened in 1965 in hopes of luring an existing major league and/or NFL/AFL team.

After the city failed to lure the Kansas City A's (who moved to Oakland in 1968), Allen courted the Braves, who announced their intention to move to Atlanta for the 1965 season. However, an injunction filed in Wisconsin forced the Braves to play a lame-duck season in Milwaukee, but the home attendance was less than 560,000.^[6] In the interim, Atlanta Stadium played host to the Braves' new Triple-A affiliate, the Atlanta Crackers of the

Liberty SiriusXM Tracking Stock Group Will Combine with SiriusXM and Form a New Public Company

Transaction Builds on SiriusXM's Durable Foundation and Positions Company to Drive Growth and Create Stockholder Value

Liberty and SiriusXM to Host Conference Call Today at 8:30 AM ET

ENGLEWOOD, Colo. and NEW YORK, Dec. 12, 2023 /PRNewswire/ -- Liberty Media Corporation ("Liberty Media" or "Liberty") (NASDAQ: LSXMA, LSXMB, LSXMK, FWONA, FWONK, LLYVA, LLYVK) and Sirius XM Holdings Inc. (NASDAQ: SIRI) ("SiriusXM" or the "Company"), the leading audio entertainment company in North America, today announced that they have entered into definitive agreements whereby Liberty Media's Liberty SiriusXM tracking stock group (NASDAQ: LSXMA, LSXMB and LSXMK) (collectively "LSXM"), will be combined with SiriusXM to create a new public company ("New SiriusXM"), which will continue to operate under the SiriusXM name and brand. New SiriusXM will have a single outstanding series of common stock and is expected to continue to be traded on the Nasdaq Global Select Market under the ticker symbol "SIRI".

"We have reached an important milestone in Liberty's ownership of SiriusXM. This combination will create value for all stockholders by eliminating the tracking stock structure, enhancing liquidity and allowing former LSXM stockholders to participate directly in the ongoing performance of SiriusXM," said Greg Maffei, Liberty President & CEO. "SiriusXM commands the largest paid share-of-ear in the car and has proven itself as an incredibly successful and profitable business. We are confident SiriusXM will continue to create value by building on its resilient business model to execute its strategic initiatives. We look forward to remaining meaningfully involved in the business and significant stockholders."

Transaction Details

Under the terms of the transaction, Liberty will separate LSXM by means of a redemptive split-off of a new subsidiary of Liberty ("SplitCo"), which will hold its shares of SiriusXM and approximately $1.7 billion of estimated attributed net liabilities. Such net liabilities include LSXM's net debt (3.75% LSXMA convertible notes due 2028, 2.75% SIRI exchangeable bonds due 2049 and SIRI margin loan, net of corporate cash)¹, as well as other liabilities for transaction fees and expenses, financing fees, litigation related liabilities and other corporate adjustments. In the split-off, holders of each series of LSXM common stock will receive a number of shares of SplitCo stock equal to the Exchange Ratio, calculated as described below, such that LSXM stockholders receive 1 share of New SiriusXM for each share of SiriusXM previously held at LSXM, adjusted for LSXM net liabilities. A wholly owned subsidiary of SplitCo will then merge with SiriusXM, and existing SiriusXM stockholders (other than Liberty Media) will receive 1:1 shares of SplitCo, which will become New SiriusXM. The transaction is intended to be tax-free to LSXM stockholders (except with respect to any cash received in lieu of fractional shares) and SiriusXM stockholders.

The Exchange Ratio will be calculated based on (i) the number of shares of SiriusXM held by Liberty, reduced by a net liabilities share adjustment (the "Net Liabilities Share Adjustment"), divided by (ii) the number of adjusted fully diluted shares of LSXM.

Liberty Media currently holds 3,205.8 million shares of SiriusXM attributed to LSXM. The Net Liabilities Share Adjustment to the Exchange Ratio will be determined as the amount of assumed LSXM net debt (excluding the 3.75% LSXMA convertible notes due 2028), with additional adjustments for transaction fees and expenses, financing fees, litigation related liabilities and other corporate adjustments, divided by the SiriusXM share price of $4.23, which represents the average of the SiriusXM daily volume-weighted average prices over the 20 consecutive trading days ending September 25, 2023, the day before Liberty filed a 13D relating to a transaction.

The adjusted fully diluted shares of LSXM will be calculated based on outstanding LSXM shares at closing, including the dilutive impact of shares underlying the 3.75% LSXMA convertible notes due 2028 and the dilutive impact of equity awards.

Mr. Goodkat : It's not something people hear about. Falls on deaf ears mostly. This particular one has been over twenty years in the making.

Mr. Goodkat : No small matter. Requires a lot of planning. Involves a lot of people. People connected only by the slightest of events. Like whispers in the night, in that place that never forgets, even when those people do. It starts with a horse.

The Tombstone tweet switches to NARCO. The exact movie I could not find, but narco is a genre.

The origins of narco culture, like drug trafficking, had humble beginnings in Mexico. Narco culture emerged from the practice of drug trafficking in the highlands of Badiraguato, Sinaloa. It was in the Sierras, or rural highlands, where an identity of drug trafficking was created before being consolidated when it crossed into the urban sphere. Narcoculture has been defined as a code of conduct and lifestyle for those that participate in the "narco world."

The tombstone tweet is in the middle of a string of siri tweets. It sounds like they are going for a reckoning which to me is force closing of the naked shorts. If this all happens before the merger then we are going high.

"Narco" is a song by Dutch DJ/production duo Blasterjaxx and Australian DJ/producer Timmy Trumpet, released as a single in 2017. It is used as the walkout song of Edwin Díaz, the closer for the New York Mets of Major League Baseball.

The song paints a vivid picture of the extravagant and dangerous life of a narco, highlighting the opulence and power they possess. It showcases the allure of the underworld, taking listeners on a thrilling journey into a world filled with adrenaline and excess. However, amidst the energetic beats and electrifying drops, Narco also serves as a cautionary tale, shedding light on the consequences and dangers that come with such a lifestyle.

The tombstone tweet is in the middle of a string of siri tweets. It sounds like they are going for a reckoning which to me is force closing of the naked shorts. If this all happens before the merger then we are going high.

@CrazyLadyTrader

Roaring Kitty, a key figure in the $GME saga, has made several intriguing tweets referencing Game of Thrones. One notable post showed the dragon waking up with red eyes instead of blue, a scene from Season 7, Episode 7, "The Dragon and the Wolf," which originally aired on August 27. The significance of the number seven is hard to ignore.

If we consider each remaining episode of Game of Thrones as a day, it suggests something significant might happen around September 2. If instead, we look at weeks, it points to October 8—a date that has the intriguing number 1008, a figure heavily discussed in the past.

In the series finale, "The Iron Throne," Bran the Broken, the Three-Eyed Raven, becomes king. Who else has looked a bit broken during a livestream? Bran, like Bruno from Encanto, can see the past, present, and future, though he's a bit more reserved and somber in his role.

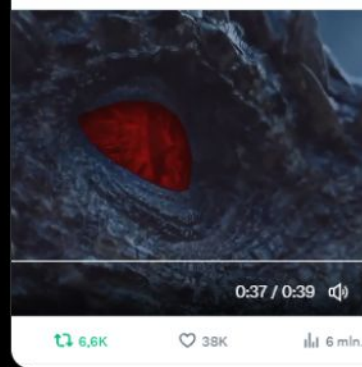

Roaring Kitty also shared clips from pivotal Game of Thrones episodes like "Dance of the Dragons" (Season 5, Episode 9), which aired on June 7, 2015. Coincidentally, Roaring Kitty did a livestream on June 7, 2024, with a thumbnail referencing Game of Thrones. Another notable reference is "The Winds of Winter" (Season 6, Episode 10), featuring the haunting piano piece "Light of the Seven" during the Sept of Baelor's destruction. The number seven continues to weave its way through these connections.

The number seven holds deep symbolism in Game of Thrones, representing the Faith of the Seven, the Seven Kingdoms, and the Seven Hells. Roaring Kitty also referenced the movie Seven in a tweet, and intriguingly, "Seven" shares the same gematria value as "Horse," adding another layer of mystery.

Given the recurring theme of seven, I can't help but wonder if we shouldn't end at episode 69 with "A Knight of the Seven Kingdoms." Counting in weeks, this lands on September 10, coinciding with GME's earnings report and bringing back the number 69—a nod to the fan-favorite episode centered on Brienne of Tarth.

The number seven is driving me crazy, just like the edited tweet about "Split." For now... September feels like the month to watch. Sept...could it be the month when the Sept is destroyed with Green Wildfire? After all, in Game of Thrones, the past often foreshadows the future.
